Software for a winery: the cellar, the tasting room and the wine club

Run the cellar, the tasting room and the wine club from your own website.

What it does

- The club release is a job the software does.
- Bottles are counted per wine per location, and what a release or an unpaid order has spoken for is reserved, so the tasting room cannot sell the same bottles twice.
- A special is stored as a rule, not as a price somebody typed over the top, so a margin report a year later still says why a bottle sold for what it did.
- The winery's data sits in its own tables in the database you already back up, with no per-user fee and no monthly bill.
- A lapsed license pauses new entries and never locks the records.
